☞ SITUATIONAL INTERVIEW QUESTIONS ☞

Many employers are now asking interview questions where you will need to describe specific situations and examples from past experience. These are called situational, behavioral, or skills-based type questions. To answer these questions use examples from work, volunteer experience or education that will show an employer your ability to do the job. Prepare by thinking of examples you could give that demonstrate skill in areas such as teamwork, organization, quick-thinking, verbal and written communication, adaptability to change, problem-solving, customer service, etc. Answering these types of questions gives you an opportunity to show you have excellent communication skills and are prepared to solve problems and make decisions.

Examples and Potential Answers:

- Describe a situation where you had to adapt to change and how you handled it.
Example of a potential answer: Two years ago I was laid off from a job as a program services provider with a local agency where I had worked for eight years. I weighed my options in order to make an informed decision on my future. A career in accounting had always interested me. I love working with numbers and doing detail work. I decided to use this as an opportunity to go back to school and learn a new career. Going back to school was difficult at first but it is the best decision I ever made. Now I am looking forward to working in the industry.
- Give an example of a problem you faced in school or in a previous job and how you solved it.
Example of a potential answer: In one of my business classes, I was required to work cooperatively with another student to do research on a specific topic and do a presentation to the class. However, the other student blew off meetings and put no effort into the project. I finally spoke to this student after class and explained my frustration with this situation. I discovered this individual was working two jobs and going to school full-time. We solved the problem by choosing a meeting time and location that would better accommodate his schedule.
- Tell me about a time when you had to use organizational skills. What were the results?
Example of a potential answer: Two years ago I was asked to assist with a fundraising activity for a local homeless shelter. A fundraiser had never been held before for this agency. I worked closely with agency members and other volunteers to develop and run this event. I wrote a plan of action including a timeline, arranged for a site to hold the fundraiser and arranged to have t-shirts printed for volunteers. It was very successful and is now a yearly event.

S A few years back I was working as a Service Advisor at car dealership. One morning in our department staff meeting the Service Manager announced that we had been receiving an unacceptable amount of negative reviews for the service we had been providing our customers. His solution was to create a committee that would analyze the situation and put forth actionable improvements, and for this he asked for volunteers.

T I had been looking for an opportunity to show that I was capable of taking on more responsibility, and being a person who enjoys working in group situations, I was the first to volunteer. My Service Manager was quick to make me the leader of the committee, which put me in the position of the leader of a group of 4 other people who were tasked to come up with a solution.

A Over the next three weeks we analyzed each of the customer services reports and discovered that the vast majority of negative reviews were a result of lengthy wait times for customers. Knowing that we had to come up with a solution to decrease the amount of time our customers were left waiting, I then lead brainstorming sessions to find a way to fix the problem. We zoned in on changing the way our mechanics worked on each work order.

R After implementing my suggestion, mechanics were able to focus mainly on their specializations, which meant they worked faster and more efficiently, which translated to wait times dropping by 18%. This was a situation that required me to manage 4 people and find a solution that created a positive outcome and solved a critical issue, which I believe I was able to do.
